Showing an interest in helping your team flourish is showing an investment in their future, which is proven to speed up career progression and increase employee satisfaction, helping you to attract, develop and retain the best individuals.

What should you expect from your online CPD?

With the accountancy sector changing so rapidly and doing CPD online now more important than ever, you need to choose the right CPD service that can help you shape your team and be ready for the future. So what to look for?

Flexibility

Different people learn in different ways, so flexibility in what and where your team learns is increasingly important. It's crucial that each member of your team can choose the learning style that works for them and can complete learning at a time that suits them, whether that's at home, in the office or even on their commute.

Range

Learning and development should be a personalised journey. To cater for your entire team you need access to a wide range of both technical knowledge and professional skills training so each person can choose what they require to fill their knowledge gaps.

Effectiveness

To be effective, learning needs to be relevant, personal and engaging. It should encompass both technical and professional skills that each employee can draw on to fulfil their potential.

Why
accountingcpd.net?

We take the hassle out of CPD by helping each member of your team plan and organise their professional development.

What our partners say about us

Over the last ten years, accountingcpd.net has helped transform the way our members do their CPD and enabled them to develop into the fully rounded finance professionals they need to be to embrace the future.

Clare Hodgson, Senior Manager – Professional Development, ACCA

At John Crane we firmly believe high performance finance teams are based on an individual's aptitude, effective team communication, in-house training, the right tools & technology and continued motivation. accountingcpd.net definitely meets the right tools and technology aspect.

Simon Moloney, Financial Controller, John Crane

accountingcpd provides an excellent source of information to ensure that our qualified staff have access to relevant materials and are focused on continuous development. I want learning to ultimately become a part of our daily routine where we encourage continuous development and accountingcpd provides that.

Angela Griffiths, Learning and Development Manager, New Law Solicitors

The portal allows me and my team to keep up to date with any new accounting developments. The bite sized modules are very useful, particularly for someone who cannot spend a full day on a course. With the vast number of courses sorted by topic option, it gives you the flexibility to spend time on courses where there may be specific business impact.

Antonio Dias, Senior Financial Accountant, Day Lewis Plc.

A woman with dark hair is shown in profile, focused on typing on a silver laptop. She is wearing a white long-sleeved shirt. In the background, another person with blonde hair is also working at a laptop, slightly out of focus. The scene is brightly lit, likely from a window on the left. A white mug is visible on the desk to the left of the laptop. A blue circular graphic with white text is overlaid on the center of the image.
